The earliest man was not so much in need of money as we are nowadays .He was satisfied with simple forms of shelter, made his rough tools and weapons and obtained food from natural materials around him.

As he became more civilised he began to want better shelter, more advanced tools and weapons and comfortable life .As a result ,man had to turn to the skilled people .Thus, began the question of payment. At first, he got what he wanted by a simple process of exchange value came on the market .Exchange became too complicated to be satisfactory.

Thus the difficulties of exchange led by degrees to the invention of money .At first, man used shells then big flat stones and later pieces of metal bearing values according to the rarity of the metal and the size of the pieces .Thus money, as we know it, came into beings.
